

Brett's Role-playing Adventure

This was a scammer whose address I pulled off from the Scambaiting Bulletin Board and plugged into my fake Yahoo profile's contacts. He popped up as online, so I started to chat with him, making it look like a case of mistaken identity. I wanted to see if this idiot assumed the role...lol. Of course he did, though he could not answer my questions at the end when "I found him out". It seems that he would rather admit that he lied about everything I knew about the old Brett, instead of lying about the new Brett. Then he gets mad when I call him a liar...

He is trying his best to assume the role, but is saying some things that don't make sense. If you notice, he doesn't acknowledge the questions that he couldn't possibly know. This is more evident later.
