

Good As Gold

This was a scambait turned in by a viewer. You can see by his responses that he is a man after my own heart – he attacks the scammer with insults about his ridiculous “modality”. I apologize to this particular baiter if I did not put the emails in the exact correct order, but I can only work with what you give me! We need to get more people involved with scambaiting – remember – a scammers worse nightmare isn't the police, or even someone who finds them morally reprehensible and curses them out, but someone who plays the compliant victim and makes them believe that they are going to score. Imagine from a scammers point of view, putting in months of time to a victim, only to find out in the end that they were being played with!
