

Blame It On Rio

This idiot is one of three fake profiles this idiot contacts me from. The funny thing is, this fool didn't wait until one profile failed, and then contact me with the next one, and so on. He contacted me (sent buddy request) from all three profiles within a day of each other. The foolish part about this is that Adam, Eddie, and Michael all log in and out at the exact same time, so it is obvious that they are one and the same.

I love making these Africans break down and confess everything to me. It's funny though, they will admit to some lies, but not others. He admits he's a scammer and black, etc., but tells me he is using his fake profile to make friends and find a lasting relationship? Yeah, because that is a good foundation for every friendship and romance – to start off with lies about your race and nationality. Don't think they will ever find out?
