

Doctor J

Although I have not compiled the full scambait with Jilese Jibril, you may know him from mini-baits that I have published. I have been talking to this fool for over a year – he is the moron that sent me Professional Poker player Joe Sebock's picture as his own (along with the link to where he stole it from). He also sent the hitman Antonio Sprazza after me, as well and a number of different type of scams. This fool will not learn his lesson. Sometimes a month will pass and then he will start talking to me again – with a new job and insisting that he stopped scamming and begging from women – only to beg me (Debbie) again. Here he is again...

Jilese Jibril (11:23 AM): Why you say this?

Debbie (11:24 AM): Since you have your PhD, that makes you a doctor – you think they would have told you that when they gave it to you.

Debbie (11:29 AM): did you know that?

Debbie (11:38 AM): You didn't know that having a PhD makes you a doctor, did you?

Debbie (11:47 AM): lol - you are funny

He immediately logs out.

This fool is a prime example of how big the egos are on these idiots. I repeatedly told him I knew he was a scammer and will never give him money, I call him all sorts of names and prove that he is lying, and yet he still tries to convince me that he is real. Does he really think he will get money from Debbie? If he does, then I underestimated his stupidity. It seems to me that for whatever reason he tries to prove that he is something he is not or prove that he is something great (trying to save face, I guess). That's why he chose the PhD instead of just a Bachelor's Degree or even a Master's – a PhD sounds a lot more impressive to me, but unfortunately he didn't know that it would make him a doctor as well – lol.

At some point, I will gather all of the baits from Jilese (and the Terrible Trio) and put them together in order, but there is a lot of information to collect from all of the different scambaits and random chat sessions. He is, by far, one of the dumbest scammers on Earth.
